The Company's Dividend Policy

The Company prioritizes investments based on our growth strategy to achieve continuous business growth through the creation of customer value. The Company's basic dividend policy is to pursue active return of profits in parallel with its efforts to achieve optimal capital structure in light of the business environment.

Up to the current fiscal year, the Company has set a consolidated dividend payout ratio in the range of 40% as a mid-term target, the ratio based on profit after an amount equivalent to the statutory effective tax rate is deducted from business profit (conceptually and numerically similar to operating profit under J-GAAP), which shows profit from the Company's main operations. The Company has also sought to be more active in giving back to shareholders by agilely repurchasing the Company's shares as warranted by share price, the capital situation, and other factors.

Starting in the next fiscal year, the Company will implement a stable dividend policy with a minimum dividend on equity (DOE) of 3% to ensure stable and continuous returns to shareholders. By setting the DOE as a minimum threshold, we intend to absorb the impact of fluctuations in business performance to a certain degree, clarify what a responsible level of returns to shareholders should be, and emphasize capital efficiency. Furthermore, by comprehensively considering stock price levels and our financial position, and by flexibly implementing share buybacks, we will strive to provide more proactive shareholder returns.

Proposal 2: Election of Seven Directors Who Are Not Audit & Supervisory Committee Members

The terms of office of the seven (7) Directors who are not Audit & Supervisory Committee Members will expire at the conclusion of this Meeting. Accordingly, we propose to appoint seven (7) Directors who are not Audit & Supervisory Committee Members.

(2) Review of the Previous Long-Term Vision, "Epson 25 Renewed" (2021–2025)

1) Main achievements

In "Epson 25 Renewed," we have established the vision statement as "Co-creating sustainability and enriching communities to connect people, things, and information by leveraging our efficient, compact, and precision technologies and digital technologies." Under this vision statement, we have implemented a range of initiatives and achieved numerous results.

- Growth driven by inkjet technology
 - Significant growth in inkjet printhead sales, including expansion in the Chinese market.
- Progress in emerging markets
 - Revenue of high-capacity ink tank models significantly increased.
 - Established manufacturing site in India.
- Advancement of structural reforms
 - Improved profitability in projectors and wearables.
- Investments for future growth
 - Acquired Fiery as part of our growth strategy.
 - Established a new sales company in Dubai to further strengthen the Middle East and Africa region.
- Promotion of advanced sustainability initiatives
 - Achieved 100% renewable electricity use across the Group.
 - Received strong external recognition for our sustainability initiatives.

2) Financial targets

In “Epson 25 Renewed,” ROIC, ROE, and ROS all fell short of the targets set for FY2025.

Target	FY2025 Target (*1)	FY2025 Actual
ROIC	7.0% or more	5.5%
ROE	8.0% or more	2.2%
ROS	7.0% or more	5.9%

*1. Updated in April 2024

3) Issues and countermeasures

In “Epson 25 Renewed,” two major issues remain.

The first is the need for further improvement in capital efficiency. While we shifted to an operational structure that prioritized market supply in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, our response to subsequent market changes was delayed, leading to a decline in capital efficiency. Furthermore, earnings were squeezed by rising costs, such as inflation.

The second challenge is the delay in launching growth domains. Although external environmental changes were also a contributing factor, insufficient allocation of resources to areas with growth potential resulted in unmet growth targets.

Based on a recognition of these issues, we have formulated a new long-term vision.

(3) Concept of the New Long-Term Vision “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035”

In March 2026, Epson established a new long-term vision for 2035, “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035.” Grounded in our technologies and philosophy of efficient, compact and precise innovation, and fueled by the knowledge and data accumulated on the frontlines, In ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035,” Epson aims to enhance productivity and reliability, delivering value across industry as well as in people’s learning, work and lifestyles. We will create societal and corporate value simultaneously so that people and the planet can continue to advance together.

“ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035” divides the 10-year period into three phases.

The Mid-Term Business Plan covering fiscal years 2026 through 2028 is designated as Phase 1. During this phase, we will drive the transformation of our business foundation to support growth. Phase 2 spans from fiscal year 2029 to 2031. During this phase, we will accelerate and complete the transition to a growth model, based on the foundation established in Phase 1. Phase 3 covers fiscal years 2032 through 2035. During this phase, we will establish a business structure that will sustain growth.

(4) Business and financial issues to be addressed with priority

1) Outline of the mid-term business plan

Epson recognizes that the decline in capital efficiency and the insufficient allocation of resources to growth areas, as highlighted in “Epson 25 Renewed,” are priority issues that must be addressed.

To address these issues, in Phase 1, we will implement “Transforming the earnings base” and “Focus resource allocation on growth domains.” Through these initiatives, we aim to achieve an ROIC of 8% by FY2028.

(Transforming the earnings base)

We will achieve efficiency by transforming global operations while simultaneously driving the transformation of regional strategies and our earnings model.

In terms of efficiency, we will strengthen investment discipline at our Head Office and operations divisions, standardize our IT infrastructure globally, and reduce overhead costs at major overseas manufacturing sites, while also optimizing the workforce in our sales structure and consolidating back-office functions. Furthermore, we will strengthen demand forecasting and supply planning capabilities and streamline production operations to optimize inventory levels.

Through these initiatives, we expect to achieve a cumulative profit improvement of 26 billion yen over three years, primarily through the streamlining of fixed costs, and aim to improve invested capital turnover by approximately 0.5 times, thereby leading to a reduction in invested capital.

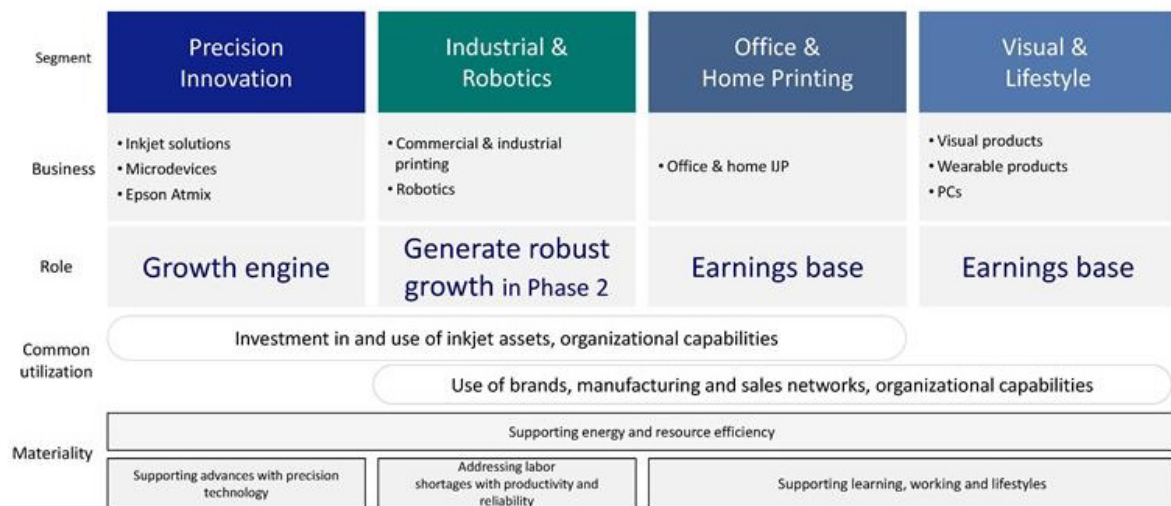

In terms of sales, we will actively invest in emerging economies where continued growth is expected, as well as in countries and regions with significant growth potential, while strengthening partnerships with local partners and expanding the capabilities of our regional offices. In addition, we will enhance our ability to provide solutions that are optimally tailored to the needs of each industry, expand business models that promise sustainable revenue, and transform our earnings model.

(Focus resource allocation on growth domains)

By redefining our growth domains and reorganizing our business segments, we will clarify the roles of each business and promote the allocation of management resources with a focus on capital efficiency.

Specifically, we will position the Precision Innovation Segment, centered on the Inkjet solutions, Microdevices, and Epson Atmix (fine metal powders) businesses, as our growth engine, and aim to strengthen our competitive advantage and expand our business through aggressive investment. Furthermore, we position the Industrial & Robotics Segment as a strategic area for achieving robust growth in Phase 2, and will proceed with strengthening our business foundation in the Commercial & Industrial printing and the Robotics businesses.

Meanwhile, the Office & Home Printing Segment and the Visual & Lifestyle Segment are positioned as stable earning bases and will play a role in supporting investment in growth domains through efficiency improvements and enhanced profitability.

2) Business strategy

<Precision Innovation Segment>

This segment is an area where we particularly expect sales and profit growth in Phase 1.

It is a group of businesses in the growing market for high-value-added industrial applications, consisting of the Inkjet Solutions business centered around printheads, the Microdevices business centered around timing devices, and the Epson Atmix business, which develops, manufactures, and sells high-performance metal materials using fine metal powders.

We recognize that Epson's Inkjet Solutions business has the potential to transform a wide range of industrial processes, including electronic components, solar power generation equipment, and biotechnology, through Micro Piezo, an Epson inkjet technology that enables precise dispensing of materials in the required amount and location, without the use of heat. Furthermore, not only can we provide printheads as hardware, but we can also offer peripheral technologies such as drive control, ink, and image processing, which we have cultivated over many years of product development, as integrated solutions. Additionally, to expand the application areas, we will pursue further growth by actively utilizing investments and joint development, in addition to our own initiatives.

Significant opportunities are arising in the Microdevices business due to the rapid increase in demand for high-capacity, high-speed computing and communications, particularly in the area of mobility, such as AI and autonomous driving. Epson has the capability to produce high-precision timing devices by combining crystal manufacturing technology with semiconductor logic design. This enables the integration of high precision, low power consumption, and miniaturization into a single design, driving technological advancement. We will leverage these characteristics to further expand our market presence.

<Industrial & Robotics Segment>

This segment is expected to grow further as we move toward Phase 2. We will strengthen our competitive advantages in commercial and industrial printing and robotics applications while also proactively creating demand.

In the Commercial & Industrial Printing business, we will enhance our product lineup, centered on high-productivity products as finished products, while also strengthening our solutions to support our customers' transition from analog printing to digital printing.

In the Robotics business, in addition to sensing and control technologies, which are Epson's strengths, we will integrate new AI technologies to provide sustainable, long-term business models, not only in manufacturing industries but also in various service areas and labor-saving applications. Through these activities, we will build close relationships with our customers and establish a business foundation that will lead to future growth.

<Office & Home Printing Segment>

This segment serves as a stable earnings base that supports investment in Epson's growth segments while pursuing efficient business operations. Furthermore, this segment provides Epson with three major strengths and assets.

- A B2C and B2B customer base built on the number of units in operation worldwide
- Growth in emerging economies and strong trust in the Epson brand
- A competitive global supply chain backed by high production capacity

The Office & Home IJP business, with its track record of creating new markets through the use of inkjet technology centered on high-capacity ink tank models, is steadily advancing the transition to inkjet for office and specific applications. Additionally, we will continue to expand into countries and regions with significant growth potential, aiming to outpace market growth and increasing our share in emerging economies. In addition to this sales capability, we will refine our local planning and design capabilities, our ability to propose solutions, and provide a business model that ensures consistent fulfillment of demand.

<Visual & Lifestyle Segment>

This segment serves as an earnings base that leverages our highly unique technologies.

Although the Visual Products business faces issues related to market growth itself, we aim to maintain a high market share by further specializing in and developing demand in areas where projection technology is required, such as education, projection mapping, and immersive experiences. Furthermore, by completing our business structure reforms, we will generate more stable profits than ever before.

The Wearable Products business is positioned as an original business for Epson, representing our origins. We will enhance our product competitiveness and manufacturing by leveraging our highly unique technological capabilities, while also streamlining operations to improve profitability.

3) Financial targets

Based on the objective of transforming our business foundation set forth in Phase 1, Epson has established the following targets for FY 2028.

Target	FY2025 Actual	FY2028 Target
Revenue	1,413.3 billion yen	1,500.0 billion yen
ROIC	5.5%	8.0%
ROE	2.2%	10.0%
ROS	5.9%	8.0%
Industrial domain as percentage of business profit (*2)	45%	60%

*2. Share of industrial domain as a percentage of the total profit of the four business segments

4) Cash allocation

Epson will balance growth investments with shareholder returns while maintaining financial soundness. We expect cash flows from operating activities to total approximately 560 billion yen (*3) over the three-year period from FY2026 to FY2028. We will actively allocate these funds, including strategic investments, to growth domains such as the Precision Innovation Segment and the Industrial & Robotics Segment. As for shareholder returns, we will set a minimum dividend level of 3% DOE (Dividend on Equity). In addition, we plan to repurchase a total of 80.0 billion yen in treasury stock over the next three years, further enhancing shareholder returns.

*3. Before R&D expense deduction

(5) Concept of Environmental Vision 2050

Epson has established “Environmental Vision 2050,” a vision for environmental initiatives that are a prerequisite for a sustainable society, as follows, and has set goals to be achieved by 2050 and initiatives to realize these goals.

Items	Contents
Vision statement	Epson will become carbon negative and underground resource (*4) free by 2050 to achieve sustainability and enrich communities
Goals	2030: Reduce total emissions in line with the 1.5°C scenario (*5) 2050: Carbon negative and underground resource (*4) free
Actions	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● Reduce the environmental impacts of products and services and in supply chain● Achieve sustainability in a circular economy and advance the frontiers of industry through creative, open innovation● Contribute to international environmental initiatives

*4. Non-renewable resources such as oil and metals

*5. Target for reducing greenhouse gas emissions aligned with the criteria under the Science Based Targets initiative (SBTi)

(6) Concept and initiatives of sustainability

1) Concept of sustainability management

Under “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035,” Epson’s vision of sustainability is to connect the value created through our business activities with society and industry, thereby achieving a balance between social and economic value while sustaining long-term growth. Amid structural changes and emerging social challenges, including environmental issues, resource constraints, labor shortages, and geopolitical risks, we will continue to provide value based on the materiality identified in light of these factors. This includes improving the efficiency of energy and resource use, enhancing productivity and reliability, and contributing to a higher quality of learning, work, and living.

2) Response to climate change

Epson aims to contribute to reducing our environmental impact across society through its products and services, capturing and expanding business opportunities. Under our “Environmental Vision 2050,” which sets the goals of achieving carbon negativity and zero consumption of non-renewable resources by 2050, we are working toward decarbonization and resource circulation.

Also, since Epson announced its endorsement of the TCFD recommendations in October 2019, the Company has been promoting information disclosure in accordance with the TCFD framework to strengthen communication with stakeholders, including shareholders and investors, and has been incorporating climate-related risks and opportunities into management decisions and strategic planning.

3) Measures for human capital and diversity

As part of our organizational and talent strategy to realize “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035,” we envision a future transition from a single operations division structure to globally diversified organizational groups tailored to different business models. The key lies in developing and securing leaders capable of leading these organizational groups and conceptualizing and executing initiatives even in highly uncertain environments, along with fostering engineering talent and cultivating an engineering mindset that starts from technology, thinks and refines based on a hands-on approach, and implements evolved technologies that are beneficial to real society on a global level.

Up to now, Epson has focused on securing diverse talent, fostering the career development and training of internal staff, strategically deploying these talents in growth domains, and building optimal organizational structures from a global perspective. Additionally, by creating an organizational culture and work environment that leverages diverse talent, embedding shared values, and implementing health management, we have worked to enhance employee engagement, invigorate the organization, and maximize overall capabilities.

Bonuses

[Details of performance indicators and reasons for selection thereof]

In consideration of the nature of bonuses as a short-term incentive, company-wide ROE is used as a performance indicator in order to link it to business performance.

[Calculation method]

The amount of bonuses payable are calculated by multiplying the annual total compensation determined based on each officer’s positions and the Role Grade as of the last month of the fiscal year under review by the bonus ratio for each position and the Role Grade, and then multiplying the bonus base amount by a coefficient (0% to 200%) (*) based on the achievement level against index values such as company-wide ROE targets and a coefficient (±40%) based on the achievement level against individual targets.

*In the event that there are any variable factors that should be taken into consideration, the coefficient may be adjusted upon deliberation by the Director Compensation Committee and is determined by the Board of Directors.

[Results of performance indicators]

Company-wide ROE used as a performance indicator is 2.0%. Company-wide ROE is calculated excluding treasury shares acquired in and after the fiscal year 2022.

7. Basic Policy regarding Company Control

The Company has established a basic policy as follows regarding persons who control decision on its financial and business policies (hereinafter the “basic policy”).

7.1 Basic Policy

Corporate Purpose is at the heart of all of the Company’s corporate activities. This Corporate Purpose, “Our philosophy of efficient, compact and precise innovation enriches lives and helps create a better world,” defines the kind of value that the Company provides to society and demonstrates both inside and outside the Company its unique reason for being and aspirations. The Company will provide new value to society by realizing the Corporate Purpose through its vision, based on its management philosophy, which is the universal concept of the Epson Way that defines the Group’s values and behavior. Through these efforts, we will strive to achieve sustainable growth and enhance corporate value over the medium to long term in the future.

The Company believes that its shareholders should be decided through free trade in the market, and the determination to accept to an acquisition proposal to purchase a portion of shares that would make it possible to control decisions on the Company’s financial and business policies (hereinafter “large-scale acquisition”) should ultimately be referred to a decision by the shareholders.

However, the Company believes that shareholders should determine whether or not to accept a proposal on a large-scale acquisition of the Company shares in an appropriate manner. To this end, it is vital that shareholders are provided necessary information and opinions from both the potential large-scale acquirer of the Company shares and the Company’s Board of Directors, with sufficient time ensured for shareholders to consider them.

The Company believes that it is essential for an entity controlling decisions on the Company’s financial and business policies be a party that fully understands the Company’s business activity and source of corporate value as well as the importance of having executives and employees work together to create corporate value, continuing to create and take on challenges while embracing its established business culture and preserving and acquiring the customers’ trust.

7.2 Summary of Measures in Support of the Basic Policy

(1) Specific actions in support of the basic policy

In March 2026, the Company established a new long-term vision for 2035, “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035.” Grounded in our technologies and philosophy of efficient, compact and precise innovation, and fueled by the knowledge and data accumulated on the frontlines, we will aim to enhance productivity and reliability, delivering value across industry as well as in people’s learning, work and lifestyles. We will create societal and corporate value simultaneously so that people and the planet can continue to advance together. This is Epson’s vision for “ENGINEERED FUTURE 2035.”

Under this long-term vision, the Company will support the transformation of society and industry through technology and engineering, and will continue to deliver real-world value.

(2) Measures to prevent decisions on the Company’s financial and business policies from being controlled by persons viewed as inappropriate under the basic policy

The Company will request those who intend to conduct a large-scale acquisition of the Company shares to provide sufficient information necessary to properly judge whether or not to accept such acquisition, for the benefit of maintaining and increasing its corporate value and common interests of shareholders. The Company will also disclose its Board’s opinions on such a large-scale acquisition in order to secure time and information necessary for shareholders to judge whether or not to accept such acquisition, while taking appropriate measures pursuant to the Financial Instruments and Exchange Act, the Companies Act, and other applicable laws and regulations.

7.3 Decisions Made by the Board of Directors regarding Specific Actions and the Justification for Those Decisions

The specific actions described above were specifically formulated to enhance both Epson's corporate value and the common interests of its shareholders. These actions do not impair the common interest of its shareholders and are in accordance with the above basic policy. In addition, these actions are deemed to be not intended for keeping Epson Directors in their posts.

Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements

Significant Basis of Preparing Consolidated Financial Statements

1. Basis of Preparing Consolidated Financial Statements

The Company and its affiliates (“Epson”) prepare its consolidated financial statements in compliance with International Financial Reporting Standards (“IFRS”), pursuant to the provision of Article 120, Paragraph 1 of the Regulation on Corporate Accounting. In accordance with the provisions of the latter part of the same paragraph, the consolidated financial statements are prepared with the omission of some disclosure items required by IFRS.

2. Scope of Consolidation and Application of Equity Method

Number of subsidiaries: 85

Number of affiliates accounted for using equity method: 2

The names of the major consolidated subsidiaries are described in “(2) Status of Significant Subsidiaries” in “1.10 Status of significant parent companies and subsidiaries” in the Business Report.

3. Accounting Policies

(1) Basis and Methods of Valuation of Assets

1) Financial assets other than derivatives

(i) Initial recognition and measurement

Epson measures financial assets at their fair value plus transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition of the financial assets at initial recognition. However, in the measurement after initial recognition (subsequent measurement), the transaction costs of financial assets classified as subsequently measured at fair value through profit or loss are recognized in profit or loss.

Financial assets are initially recognized on the trade date when Epson becomes party to the contractual provisions of the financial instrument.

(ii) Classification and subsequent measurement

At initial recognition, Epson classifies financial assets as subsequently measured at amortized cost, fair value through other comprehensive income, or fair value through profit or loss.

(a) Financial assets are classified as financial assets measured at amortized cost if both of the following conditions are met:

- 1) the financial assets are held within a business model whose objective is to hold financial assets in order to collect contractual cash flows and
- 2) the contractual terms of the financial assets give rise on specified dates to cash flows that are solely payments of principal and interest on the principal amount outstanding.

(b) Financial assets are classified as financial assets measured at fair value through other comprehensive income if both of the following conditions are met:

- 1) the financial assets are held within a business model whose objective is achieved by both collecting contractual cash flows and selling financial assets and
- 2) the contractual terms of the financial assets give rise on specified dates to cash flows that are solely payments of principal and interest on the principal amount outstanding.

(c) Financial assets except for those provided above are classified as financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss.

However, Epson may designate financial assets as measured at fair value through other comprehensive income, for particular investments in equity instruments that are not held for trading and so forth, and recognizes subsequent changes in fair value in other comprehensive income. The gain or loss accumulated in other comprehensive income is reclassified to retained earnings when the financial assets are derecognized or the decline in their fair values is significant. Dividends received from the financial assets are recognized in profit or loss for each fiscal year.

(iii) Derecognition

Financial assets are derecognized when the contractual rights to the cash flows from them expire or when substantially all the risks and rewards of ownership of them are transferred.

(iv) Impairment

For impairment of financial assets, loss allowance for expected credit losses are recognized.

At each reporting date, Epson assesses whether the credit risk on a financial instrument has increased significantly since initial recognition.

If the credit risk on a financial instrument has not increased significantly since initial recognition, the loss allowance for that financial instrument is measured at an amount equal to 12-month expected credit losses. Meanwhile, if the credit risk on a financial instrument has increased significantly since initial recognition, the loss allowance for that financial asset is measured at an amount equal to the lifetime expected credit losses.

However, the loss allowance for trade receivables, contract assets and lease receivables are measured at an amount equal to the lifetime expected credit losses.

Expected credit losses of a financial instrument are measured in a way that reflects:

- (a) an unbiased and probability-weighted amount that is determined by evaluating a range of possible outcomes;
- (b) the time value of money; and
- (c) reasonable and supportable information that is available without undue cost or effort at the reporting date about past events, current conditions and forecasts of future economic conditions.

When impairment is recognized, the carrying amount of the financial asset is reduced through an allowance account for credit losses and the amount of expected credit losses is recognized as impairment loss in profit or loss. If the amount of the impairment loss decreases due to an event occurring after the impairment was recognized, the previously recognized impairment loss is reversed in profit or loss through an allowance account for credit losses.

2) Derivatives

Epson utilizes derivatives, including forward foreign exchange contracts and non-deliverable forwards, to hedge foreign exchange and interest rate risks. These derivatives are initially measured at fair value when the contract is entered into, and are subsequently remeasured at fair value.

A gain or loss on a derivative is recognized in profit or loss. However, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instruments that is determined to be an effective hedge of cash flow hedges and hedges of net investments in foreign operations are recognized in other comprehensive income.

3) Inventories

The cost of inventories includes all costs of purchase, costs of conversion and other costs incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition.

Inventories are measured at the lower of cost or net realizable value, and the cost of inventories is assigned by using the weighted-average cost formula. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business less the estimated costs of completion and the estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

(2) Methods of Depreciation/Amortization of Assets

1) Property, plant, and equipment (excluding right-of-use assets)

Except for asset that is not subject to depreciation such as land, asset is depreciated using the straight-line method over its estimated useful life. The estimated useful life of major asset is as follows:

- Buildings and structures: 10 to 35 years
- Machinery and vehicles: 4 to 17 years

The estimated useful life, depreciation method and residual value are reviewed at each fiscal year end and, if expectations differ from previous estimates, the effect of changes in accounting estimates is recognized prospectively.

2) Intangible assets

An intangible asset with a finite useful life is amortized using the straight-line method over its estimated useful life. The estimated useful life of major intangible asset with a finite useful life is as follows:

- Software: 3 to 8 years
- Customer-related intangible assets: 7 to 16 years
- Technology-based intangible assets: 7 to 9 years

The estimated useful life and amortization method of an asset are reviewed at each fiscal year end and, if expectations differ from previous estimates, the effect of changes in accounting estimates is recognized prospectively.

An intangible asset with an indefinite useful life or an intangible asset not yet available for use is not amortized.

3) Right-of-use assets

Right-of-use asset is usually depreciated using the straight-line method over the lease term.

4) Investment property

Except for asset that is not subject to depreciation such as land, investment property is depreciated using the straight-line method over its estimated useful life. The estimated useful life of major investment properties that is subject to depreciation is 35 years.

The estimated useful life, depreciation method and residual value are reviewed at each fiscal year end and, if expectations differ from previous estimates, the effect of changes in accounting estimates is recognized prospectively.

(3) Accounting Basis for Provisions

Epson recognizes a provision when it has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of a past event, it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation, and a reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation.

Where the effect of the time value of money is material, the amount of a provision is measured at the present value of the expenditures expected to be required to settle the obligation.

(4) Accounting Method Regarding Post-Employment Benefits

Epson has defined benefit plans and defined contribution plans as post-employment benefits plans. For each defined benefit plan, Epson calculates the present value of defined benefit obligations and the related current service cost and past service cost, using the projected unit credit method. For a discount rate, a discount period is set based on the estimated timing of benefit payments in each period, and the discount rate is determined by reference to market yields as of the end of the fiscal year on high quality corporate bonds for the period corresponding to the discount period. The net defined benefit liability (asset) is measured by deducting the fair value of any plan assets (including adjustments of the net defined benefit asset and the asset ceiling, if necessary) from the present value of the defined benefit obligation. Net interest on the net defined benefit liability (asset) is recognized in profit or loss.

Remeasurements of the net defined benefit liability (asset) are recognized in other comprehensive income and transferred to retained earnings immediately. Past service cost is recognized as an expense at the earlier of when a plan amendment or curtailment occurs and when any related restructuring costs or termination benefits are recognized.

The contribution payable to a defined contribution plan is recognized as an expense.

(5) Accounting Basis for Revenue

Epson recognizes revenue by applying the following five steps approach.

Step 1: Identify the contract(s) with a customer

Step 2: Identify the performance obligations in the contract

Step 3: Determine the transaction price

Step 4: Allocate the transaction price to the performance obligations in the contract

Step 5: Recognize revenue when Epson satisfies a performance obligation

Epson is mainly engaged in the manufacture and sale of products of Printing Solutions, Visual Communications, and Manufacturing-related & Wearables. Revenue is recognized when control of a promised good has been transferred to the customer and Epson satisfied its performance obligation. For sales of the products, this generally occurs when a good is physically delivered to a customer. Revenue is measured at the amount of consideration promised in a contract with a customer taking into consideration the effects of price discount, sales rebate, etc. When two or more performance obligations are included in a contract with a customer, Epson allocates the transaction price to each identified performance obligation based on the stand-alone selling price of each product. When the stand-alone selling prices are not directly observable, Epson estimates the selling price, assuming that the products are sold individually and allocates the transaction price based thereon.

(6) Foreign Currency Translation

Consolidated financial statements of Epson are presented in Japanese yen, which is the functional currency of the Company. Each company in Epson determines its functional currency and measures its results and financial position in that currency.

A foreign currency transaction is translated into the functional currency at a spot exchange rate at the date of the transaction or a rate that approximates the actual rate at the date of the transaction. Foreign currency monetary items are translated using the closing rate. Exchange differences arising on the settlement of monetary items or on translating monetary items are recognized in profit or loss. However, exchange differences arising on financial instruments designated as hedging instruments for net investments in foreign operations, financial assets measured at fair value through other comprehensive income, and cash flow hedges are recognized in other comprehensive income.

Assets and liabilities of foreign operations are translated into Japanese yen at the closing date, while income and expenses of foreign operations are translated into Japanese yen at exchange rates at the dates of the transactions or a rate that approximates the exchange rates at the dates of the transactions. All resulting exchange differences are recognized in other comprehensive income. On the disposal of a foreign operation, the cumulative amount of the exchange differences relating to that foreign operation is recognized in profit or loss in the period of disposition.

(7) Hedge Accounting

At the inception of a hedge, Epson formally designates and documents the hedging relationship to which hedge accounting is applied and the objectives and strategies of risk management for undertaking the hedge. The documentation includes identification of hedging instruments, the hedged items or transactions, the nature of the risks being hedged and how the hedging instrument's effectiveness is assessed in offsetting the exposure to changes in the hedged item's fair value or cash flows attributable to the hedged risks. Even though these hedges are expected to be highly effective in offsetting changes in fair value or cash flows, they are assessed on an ongoing basis and determined actually to have been highly effective throughout the financial reporting periods for which the hedges were designated.

Epson classifies hedging relationships that meet the qualifying criteria for hedge accounting in the following categories and applies hedge accounting to the hedging relationships.

1) Fair Value Hedge

A gain or loss on a derivative is recognized in profit or loss. The hedging gain or loss on the hedged items attributable to the hedged risks adjusts the carrying amount of the hedged item and is recognized in profit or loss.

2) Cash Flow Hedge

The portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognized in other comprehensive income, while the ineffective portion is recognized immediately in profit or loss. The amounts of hedging instruments recognized in other comprehensive income are reclassified to profit or loss when the transactions of the hedged items affect profit or loss. In cases where hedged items result in the recognition of non-financial assets or liabilities, the amounts recognized in other comprehensive income are accounted for as adjustments to the initial carrying amount of non-financial assets or liabilities.

When forecast transactions or firm commitments are no longer expected to occur, any related cumulative gains or losses that have been recognized in equity through other comprehensive income are reclassified to profit or loss. When the hedged future cash flows are still expected to occur, amounts that have been recognized in equity through other comprehensive income continue to be recognized in equity until the future cash flows occur.

3) Hedges of a Net Investment in a Foreign Operation

Hedges of a net investment in a foreign operation are accounted for similarly to cash flow hedges. The portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognized in other comprehensive income, while the ineffective portion is recognized in profit or loss. On the disposal of the foreign operation, the gain or loss accumulated in other comprehensive income is reclassified to profit or loss.

(8) Accounting Method Regarding Goodwill

Goodwill acquired in a business combination is measured at the amount recognized at the acquisition date less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is not amortized and allocated to a cash-generating unit that is identified according to business. The cash-generating unit to which goodwill has been allocated is tested for impairment annually, and whenever there is an indication that the unit may be impaired. An impairment loss is recognized in profit or loss and not reversed in a subsequent period.

Accounting Estimates

The preparation of Epson's consolidated financial statements includes management estimates and assumptions for measurements of income, expenses, assets and liabilities, and disclosure of contingencies as of the end of the fiscal year. These estimates and assumptions are based on the best judgment of management in light of historical experience and various factors deemed to be reasonable as of the end of the fiscal year. Given their nature, actual results may differ from those estimates and assumptions.

The estimates and assumptions are continuously reviewed by management. The effects of a change in estimates and assumptions are recognized in the period of the change and subsequent periods.

Among the above estimates and assumptions, the following are items that may have a material effect on the amounts recognized in Epson's consolidated financial statements:

(1) Impairment of Non-financial Assets

Epson performs an impairment test for property, plant and equipment, goodwill, intangible assets, investment property and right-of-use assets ("asset") when there is any indication that the recoverable amount has fallen below the carrying amount of the assets or when it is required annually.

The impairment test is performed by comparing the carrying amount with the recoverable amount of assets or cash-generating units. If the recoverable amount falls below the carrying amount, impairment losses are recognized. Recoverable amount is the higher of fair value less costs of disposal and value in use of assets or cash-generating units with certain assumptions of useful life, future cash flow of an asset, and discount rate. Value in use is calculated as the present value of the estimated future cash flows. In measuring the future cash flows, Epson bases cash flow projections on the most recent business plans approved by management which includes assumptions such as revenue growth rates and gross profit ratios. If an estimate is required for the periods beyond the period covered by the business plans, long-term growth rates are set taking future uncertainties into consideration. The future cash flows include net cash flows from the disposal of the assets or cash-generating units. These assumptions are based on the best estimates and judgments of management, but they could be affected by variable and uncertain future economic conditions. Any changes in these assumptions could have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods.

The balances of property, plant and equipment (including right-of-use assets), goodwill and intangible assets, and investment property as of March 31, 2026 are 392,795 million yen, 100,371 million yen, and 831 million yen, respectively, and the amount of impairment loss for the year ended March 31, 2026 is 29,238 million yen.

(2) Post-employment Benefits

Epson has several types of post-employment benefit plans, including defined benefit plans.

The present value of defined benefit obligations on each of these plans and the related service costs and others are calculated based on actuarial assumptions. These actuarial assumptions require estimates and judgments on variables, such as discount rates.

The actuarial assumptions are determined based on the best estimates and judgments of management, but they could be affected by variable and uncertain future economic conditions. Any changes in these assumptions could have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods.

The balances of net defined benefit assets and net defined benefit liabilities as of March 31, 2026 are 331 million yen and 16,530 million yen, respectively.

(3) Provisions

Epson recognizes various provisions, including provisions for product warranties and asset retirement obligations.

These provisions are recognized based on the best estimates of the expenditures required to settle the obligations, taking into account risks and uncertainty related to the obligations as of the end of the fiscal year.

Expenditures necessary for settling the obligations are calculated by taking all possible future results into account. However, they may be affected by unexpected events or changes in conditions which may have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods.

Major provisions including estimates and assumptions which may have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods are as follows:

1) Provision for Product Warranties

For warranty expenditures, Epson recognizes the provisions for estimated amounts based on the rate of historical service contract expenses to sales as well as estimated amounts for those products where future warranty expenses can be reliably estimated. (Balance as of March 31, 2026: 14,860 million yen)

2) Asset Retirement Obligations

Epson recognizes provisions for asset retirement obligation which derive from the acquisition, construction, development or normal use of property, plant and equipment. Epson is required to bear the amount of asset retirement obligation that it is probable that Epson will pay in light of historical experience. (Balance as of March 31, 2026: 3,772 million yen)

3) Provision for Loss on Litigation

Epson recognizes provisions for loss on litigation in process or possible litigation based on the reasonably estimated compensation for damages and litigation expenses at an amount deemed necessary at the end of the period. (Balance as of March 31, 2026: 360 million yen)

(4) Income Taxes

Epson, which conducts business around the world, makes reasonable estimates of income tax to be paid to local tax authorities in accordance with local laws and regulations, and recognizes income taxes payable and current tax expense based on these estimates.

Calculating income taxes payable and current tax expense requires estimates and judgments on various factors, including, for example, the interpretation of tax regulations by taxable entities and the tax authority in the jurisdiction or experience of prior tax investigation.

Therefore, there may be differences between the amount recognized as income taxes payable and current tax expense and the amount of actual income taxes. These differences may have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods.

In addition, deferred tax assets are recognized to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which deductible temporary differences can be utilized.

In recognizing the deferred tax assets, Epson judges the possibility of future taxable income and reasonably estimates the timing and amount of future taxable income based on factors such as the business plan which includes assumptions such as projected growth in revenue and marginal profit ratios.

The timing and amount of taxable income may be affected by variable and uncertain future economic conditions, and changes could have a material impact on Epson's consolidated financial statements in future periods.

The amount of income taxes for the year ended March 31, 2026 is 31,817 million yen, and the balance of deferred tax assets as of March 31, 2026 is 35,596 million yen.

(5) Contingencies

With regard to contingencies, any items that may have a material impact on business in the future are disclosed in light of all the available evidence as of the fiscal year end date and by taking into account the probability of these contingencies and their impact on financial reporting.

The content of contingencies is stated in “Other Notes – 2. Contingencies.”

Financial Instruments

1. Status of Financial Instruments

(1) Capital Management

Epson selects the most effective fund management method focusing on the preservation of funds in view of safeness and flexibility. In addition, Epson obtains financing from bank loans and bonds issued. Epson has a policy not to transact derivatives for speculation purposes, but for avoiding the risks stated below.

Epson monitors financial indicators in order to maintain a well-balanced capital structure that ensures an appropriate return on equity and a sound and flexible financial condition for future investment. Epson monitors credit ratings for financial soundness and flexibility, and ROE (return on equity) and ROIC (return on invested capital) for profitability, while focusing on changes in the domestic and overseas environment.

(2) Financial Risk Management

Epson is exposed to financial risks (credit risks, liquidity risks, foreign exchange risks, interest rate risks, and market price fluctuation risks) in the process of its business activities; and it manages risks based on a specific policy in order to avoid or reduce said risks. The results of risk management are regularly reported by the finance department to the Corporate Strategy Council of the Company.

Epson's policy limits derivatives to transactions for the purpose of mitigating risks from transactions based on actual demand. Therefore, Epson does not transact derivatives for speculation purposes or trading purposes.

(3) Credit Risk

Receivables, such as notes and trade receivables, resulting from the operating activities of Epson are exposed to customer credit risks.

Epson holds equity securities of customers and suppliers, mainly for the purpose of investing surplus funds and strengthening relationships with them; those securities are exposed to the issuers' credit risks.

In addition, through derivative transactions that Epson conducts in order to hedge foreign exchange fluctuation risks and interest rate fluctuation risks, Epson is exposed to the credit risks of the financial institutions which are counterparties to these transactions.

In principle, Epson sets credit lines or transaction conditions with respect to trade receivables for counterparties based on Epson's Credit Control Regulation in order to prevent credit risks relating to counterparties. In addition, the receivable balances of counterparties are monitored in order to mitigate the credit risks. The finance department of the Company regularly monitors the status of the occurrence and collection of bad debts, and reports them to the Corporate Strategy Council of the Company.

With regard to the investment of cash surpluses and derivatives, Epson invests in bonds receivable and other financial instruments with a certain credit rating and transacts with financial institutions with a high credit rating in principle in order to prevent credit risks based on Epson's Capital Management Regulation. In addition, the finance department of the Company regularly monitors the performances of these transactions and reports the results to the Corporate Strategy Council of the Company.

(4) Liquidity Risk

Epson raises funds by borrowings and bonds issued; however, these liabilities are exposed to the liquidity risk that it would not be able to repay liabilities on the due date due to the deterioration of the financing environment.

Epson establishes a financing plan based on the annual business plan and the finance department of the Company regularly monitors and collects information on the balance of liquidity-in-hand and interest-bearing debt and reports it to the Corporate Strategy Council of the Company. In addition, Epson manages liquidity risks with the balance of liquidity-in-hand maintained at a proper level by working out the financing plan on a timely basis, and by taking into consideration the financial environment.

(5) Foreign Exchange Risk

Epson operates businesses globally and, therefore, is mainly exposed to the following risks due to foreign exchange fluctuation:

1) The risk that the profit or loss and cash flow in each functional currency of Epson is influenced by foreign exchange fluctuation as a result of external transactions and intergroup transactions, including the payment and receipt of dividends, in currencies that are different from each functional currency of Epson.

2) The risk that the equity of Epson is influenced by foreign exchange fluctuation when equity denominated in each functional currency of Epson is translated into Japanese yen and consolidated.

3) The risk that the profit or loss of Epson is influenced by foreign exchange fluctuation when profit or loss denominated in each functional currency of Epson is translated into Japanese yen and consolidated.

Epson hedges against risk 1) using derivatives and other means when future cash flow is projected or when receivables and payables are fixed. As a rule, the net of foreign currency-denominated operating receivables and payables is hedged mainly using forward foreign exchange contracts. Epson does not hedge against risks 2) and 3), in principle.

In order to mitigate risks mentioned above resulting from the foreign exchange fluctuation, in accordance with Epson's Foreign Exchange Management Regulation, Epson establishes a foreign currency hedge policy based on the current conditions and forecast of the foreign exchange market, implements the aforementioned hedges under the supervision of the Foreign Exchange Management Committee of the Company. The finance department of the Company regularly reports the performances to the Corporate Strategy Council of the Company.

(6) Interest Rate Risk

Epson's interest rate risk arises from cash equivalents and interest-bearing debt. Borrowings and bonds issued with floating rates are subject to the effects of changes in future cash flows caused by the fluctuation of market interest rates; while, borrowings and bonds issued with fixed rates are subject to the effects of changes in the fair value caused by the fluctuation of market interest rates.

In response to the fluctuation of market interest rates, Epson reduces the interest rate risk by implementing an interest rate swap and adjusting appropriate proportion of financing between floating rates and fixed rates. In accordance with Epson's Capital Management Regulation, the interest rate swap is approved by the finance officer of the Company.

(7) Market Price Fluctuation Risk

With respect to equity securities, Epson is exposed to share price fluctuation risks arising from equity instruments (shares).

Epson regularly assesses the fair value and financial conditions of the issuers, and reviews the portfolio held by taking into account the relationship with counterparty entities. Epson intends to hold equity instruments not for short-term trading but for long-term investment.

2. Fair Value of Financial Instruments

(1) Fair Value Measurement

The fair values of financial instruments are measured as follows:

(Derivatives)

The fair values are calculated based on prices obtained from financial institutions.

(Equity securities)

When market values for equity securities are available, such values are used as the fair values. The fair values of the equity securities whose market values are unavailable are measured by using the discounted cash flow method, price comparison method based on the prices of similar types of securities and other valuation methods.

(Borrowings)

Current borrowings are measured at their carrying amounts, because they are settled on a short-term basis and the fair values approximate their carrying amounts. For non-current borrowings with floating rates, it is assumed that the fair value is equal to the carrying amounts, because the rates are affected in the short term by fluctuations in market interest rates, and because Epson's credit status has not greatly changed since they were implemented. The fair values of non-current borrowings with fixed rates are calculated by the total sum of the principal and interest discounted by using the interest rates that would be applied if similar new borrowings were conducted.

(Bonds issued)

The fair values are calculated based on prices obtained from financial institutions.

(2) Fair Value Hierarchy

The fair value hierarchy of financial instruments is categorized from Level 1 to Level 3 as follows:

Level 1: Fair value measured at quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities

Level 2: Fair value calculated using inputs other than quoted prices included within Level 1 that are observable, either directly or indirectly

Level 3: Fair value calculated using valuation techniques including unobservable inputs for the assets and liabilities

The transfers between levels in the fair value hierarchy are deemed to have occurred at the end of the reporting period.

1) Financial instruments measured at amortized cost

The carrying amounts and the fair value hierarchy of financial instruments measured at amortized cost are as follows. The fair values of financial instruments that are not listed on the table below approximate the carrying amounts.

(Millions of yen)

Revenue Recognition

1. Disaggregation of Revenue

The revenue of the reportable segments is disaggregated by each business. The relationship between the disaggregated revenue and the reportable segments is as follows:

		(Millions of yen)
		Revenue
Printing Solutions Segment		1,029,537
	Office and Home Printing business	695,221
	Commercial and Industrial Printing business	334,386
	Inter-segment revenue	(70)
Visual Communications Segment		181,388
Manufacturing-related & Wearables Segment		206,062
	Manufacturing solutions business	23,527
	Wearable products business	41,095
	Microdevices business and other	116,027
	PC business	28,395
	Inter-segment revenue	(2,984)
Others (Note 1)		(3,737)
Total		1,413,251
Revenue recognized from contracts with customers		1,406,935
Revenue recognized from other sources (Note 2)		6,316

(Note 1) “Others” includes revenues which are not attributed to reportable segments and inter-segment eliminations.

(Note 2) “Revenue recognized from other sources” includes lease income under IFRS 16.

Epson is mainly engaged in the manufacture and sale of products of Printing Solutions, Visual Communications, and Manufacturing-related & Wearables. Revenue is recognized when control of a promised good has been transferred to the customer and Epson satisfied its performance obligation. For sales of the products, this generally occurs when a good is physically delivered to a customer. Certain products require work such as set up or installation. In such cases, Epson determines that the performance obligation has been satisfied and recognizes revenue at the time of the customer’s acceptance after the work is completed. Epson provides the option of maintenance services such as extended warranties at the time of sales of the products. For the maintenance service contracts, since performance obligations are satisfied over time, the amount of consideration promised in the contract with a customer is recognized as revenue evenly over the contract period.

Contract liability is recognized until performance obligations are satisfied, in cases where Epson receives the consideration for the sale of the product as an advanced payment before the good deliveries, or Epson receives the consideration for the maintenance service contracts as a single advanced payment at contract inception, etc.

In certain cases, Epson sells products to customers such as distributors with rebates, etc. on condition that they achieve certain targets, etc. In such cases, Epson determines the transaction price by deducting the estimated rebates, etc. from the consideration promised in the contract with the customer. The estimated rebates, etc. are calculated using a reasonable method based on factors such as historical trends and recent information, and revenue is recognized only to the extent that it is highly probable that a significant revenue reversal will not occur.

Consideration for transactions is received mainly within one year after the performance obligation is satisfied, in accordance with the terms and conditions of a contract with a customer and includes no significant financing components.

2. Contract Balance

The breakdown of the balance of receivables and contract liabilities from contracts with customers is as follows:

	(Millions of yen)
	Balance at beginning of period	Balance at end of period
Receivables from contracts with customers	210,091	241,037
Contract liabilities	35,045	40,596
Current liabilities	16,606	19,185
Non-current liabilities	18,439	21,411

For the consolidated fiscal year under review, the amount of revenue recognized from performance obligations satisfied (or partially satisfied) in previous periods is not material.

3. Transaction Price Allocated to the Remaining Performance Obligations

Epson uses the practical expedient of omitting the disclosure of information on the remaining performance obligations because it has no significant transactions with expected contractual terms exceeding one year. Additionally, there are no significant amounts that are not included in the transaction price in the consideration from a contract with a customer.

Other Notes

1. Impairment Loss

Epson's business assets are generally grouped by business segment under the Company's management accounting system, and their cash flows are continuously monitored. Assets to be disposed of (i.e., assets planned to be disposed or sold etc.) and idle assets are separately assessed for impairment on the individual asset level.

The amount of impairment loss recognized for the consolidated fiscal year under review is 29,238 million yen, and the main details are as follows.

Impairment loss recognized for the goodwill related to Fiery, LLC, which is included in the commercial and industrial business of the Printing Solutions business segment, is 25,889 million yen. This impairment is recognized due to a deterioration in market conditions in the commercial printing and industrial printing markets served by Fiery, LLC, which has become more severe than previously anticipated. Specifically, capital expenditure by the customers has been constrained amid factors such as the impact of U.S. tariff policies. Considering these circumstances, Epson conducted a prudent review of its business plans, and found that the recoverable amount fell below the carrying amount, resulting in the recognition of an impairment loss on a portion of the goodwill.

The recoverable amount of 57,427 million yen is determined based on the value in use, which is calculated by discounting the estimated future cash flows to the present value using a discount rate that takes into account the weighted average cost of capital.

In measuring the future cash flows, Epson bases cash flow projections on the business plans and other forecasts approved by management. These plans are formulated using assumptions such as revenue growth rates and gross profit ratios, based on past experience and external information. The maximum period for the formulation is five years, and in case further estimates are required in subsequent periods, long-term growth rate and other factors are set taking future uncertainties into consideration.

The pretax discount rate and long-term growth rate used to calculate the value in use are 15.1% and 2.2%, respectively.

Impairment loss recognized for business assets that belong to the manufacturing solutions business, which is a part of the Manufacturing-related & Wearables Segment, is 1,295 million yen. Although Epson will continue to invest for future growth, the recovery of markets in major sales regions has been slower than expected, and there remain uncertainties in the investment trends of certain major customers. As a result, it is expected to take time to improve profitability, and the carrying amount of the business assets in the said business has been reduced to its recoverable amount. The recoverable amount of 4,146 million yen is measured at fair value less costs of disposal. The fair value less costs of disposal is based on the real estate appraisals, etc. and is classified as Level 3 in the fair value hierarchy.

2. Contingencies

Material Litigation

In general, litigation has uncertainties and it is difficult to make a reliable estimate of financial effect of the possibility of an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits. Epson does not recognize provisions when either an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits is not probable or an estimate of financial effect is not practicable.

Epson has the following material action.

The civil action on copyright fee of ink-jet printers

In June 2010, Epson Europe B.V. (“EEB”), a consolidated subsidiary of the Company, brought a civil suit against La SCRL Reprobel (“Reprobel”), a Belgium-based group that collects copyright royalties, seeking restitution for copyright royalties for multifunction printers. After that, Reprobel also brought a civil suit against EEB. As a result, these two lawsuits were adjointed. EEB’s claims were rejected at the first trial, but EEB, dissatisfied with the decision, intends to appeal.

Notes to the Non-consolidated Financial Statements

Significant Accounting Policies

1. Basis and Methods of Valuation of Assets

(1) Securities

Held-to-maturity debt securities

- Stated at amortized cost (straight-line method).

Shares of affiliates

- Stated at cost using the moving-average method.

Available-for-sale securities

Securities other than shares that do not have a market value

- Stated at market value. (Valuation gains or losses are directly included in a component of net assets. The cost of securities sold is calculated using the moving-average method.)

Shares that do not have a market value

- Stated at cost using the moving-average method.

(2) Derivatives

Stated at market value.

(3) Inventories

Mainly stated at cost based on the weighted-average method (balance sheet values are adjusted by writing down the book value where the profitability declines).

2. Depreciation Method for Non-current Assets

(1) Property, plant and equipment (excluding leased assets)

Property, plant and equipment are depreciated using the straight-line method.

The estimated useful lives of major assets are as follows:

- Buildings: 15 to 35 years
- Machinery and equipment: 7 to 17 years

(2) Intangible assets (excluding leased assets)

Intangible assets are amortized using the straight-line method.

The estimated useful life of major intangible assets is as follows:

- Software: 3 to 5 years

(3) Leased assets

Leased assets relating to finance lease transactions with transfer of ownership are depreciated using the same method as that applied to self-owned fixed assets.

Leased assets relating to finance lease transactions without transfer of ownership are depreciated over the lease terms by the straight-line method, assuming the residual value is zero.

3. Accounting Basis for Provisions

(1) Allowance account for credit losses

To provide a reserve for possible losses on receivables or loans, the Company records the allowance account for credit losses based on the historical default rates for ordinary receivables and on an estimate of collectability of specific doubtful receivables.

(2) Provision for bonuses

The provision for bonuses is recorded to accrue the bonuses to employees of the Company at an amount estimated to be incurred by the Company for the fiscal year under review.

(3) Provision for directors' bonuses

The provision for directors' bonuses is recorded to accrue the bonuses to Directors of the Company at an estimated amount to be paid.

(4) Provision for product warranties

To provide for possible expenditures associated with product warranties, the Company records the provision for product warranties based on the rate of historical after-sales service contract expenses to sales in past fiscal years, as well as for other specific warranty provisions for specific businesses where future warranty expenses can be specifically estimated.

(5) Provision for loss on litigation

The provide for loss on litigation in process or possible litigation based on the reasonably estimated compensation for damages and litigation expenses at an amount deemed necessary at the end of the fiscal year under review.

(6) Provision for retirement benefits

To provide retirement benefits to employees of the Company, the provision for retirement benefits is recorded at an amount calculated based on the projected benefit obligations and plan assets at the end of the fiscal year under review. If the calculation results in a debit balance for the provision for retirement benefits, it is recorded as prepaid pension costs under investments and other assets.

Past service cost is amortized for the pro-rata amount computed by the straight-line method over a certain period (five years), which is within the average remaining service period of employees at the time of the occurrence in each fiscal year.

Actuarial gains or losses are amortized for the pro-rata amount computed by the straight-line method over a certain period (five years), which is within the average remaining service period of employees at the time of the occurrence in each fiscal year, commencing from the fiscal year following the fiscal year of occurrence.

4. Accounting Basis for Revenue

The Company recognizes revenue by applying the following five steps approach.

Step 1: Identify the contract(s) with a customer

Step 2: Identify the performance obligations in the contract

Step 3: Determine the transaction price

Step 4: Allocate the transaction price to the performance obligations in the contract

Step 5: Recognize revenue when the Company satisfies a performance obligation

The Company is mainly engaged in the manufacture and sale of products of Printing Solutions, Visual Communications, and Manufacturing-related & Wearables. Revenue is recognized when control of a promised good has been transferred to the customer and the Company satisfied its performance obligation. For sales of the products, this generally occurs when a good is physically delivered to a customer. When two or more performance obligations are included in a contract with a customer, the Company allocates the transaction price to each identified performance obligation based on the stand-alone selling price of each product. When the stand-alone selling prices are not directly observable, the Company estimates the selling price, assuming that the products are sold individually and allocates the transaction price based thereon.

5. Basis for Translating of Foreign Currency Denominated Assets and Liabilities into Japanese Yen

Monetary receivables and payables denominated in foreign currency are translated into Japanese yen at the spot exchange rate on the closing date of the fiscal year under review. Translation differences are recognized as profit or loss in the fiscal year under review.

6. Hedge Accounting

(1) Hedge accounting method

Gains or losses on hedging instruments measured at market value are deferred, in principle, as deferred gains or losses on hedges under net assets until such gains or losses on hedged items are recognized.

(2) Hedging instruments and hedged items

Forward foreign exchange contracts and non-deliverable forwards, etc.: Amounts of foreign currencies deposited or withdrawn

(3) Hedge policy

The Company enters into derivative contracts for hedging purposes to restrict foreign exchange fluctuation risks, which are mainly associated with sales denominated in foreign currencies while minimizing the amounts not covered by hedging through the use of netting and other measures.

(4) Assessment of hedge effectiveness

The assessment of hedge effectiveness is omitted because the market fluctuation of hedging instruments and hedged items is offset at the start of hedging and it continues to remain offset subsequently since the fluctuation rates of hedging instruments and hedged items are identical.

Accounting Estimates

The preparation of the Company's non-consolidated financial statements includes management estimates and assumptions for measurements of income, expenses, assets and liabilities, and disclosure of contingencies as of the end of the fiscal year. These estimates and assumptions are based on the best judgment of management in light of historical experience and various factors deemed to be reasonable as of the end of the fiscal year. Given their nature, actual results may differ from those estimates and assumptions.

The estimates and assumptions are continuously reviewed by management. The effects of a change in estimates and assumptions are recognized in the period of the change and subsequent periods.

Among the above estimates and assumptions, the following are items that may have a material effect on the amounts recognized in the Company's non-consolidated financial statements:

(1) Valuation of Shares of Subsidiaries and Affiliates

The amount of shares of subsidiaries and affiliates recorded in the current fiscal year is 230,275 million yen.

For shares of subsidiaries and affiliates without market prices, we compare the intrinsic value of the shares with their acquisition cost. If the intrinsic value of the shares has significantly declined, we assess the recoverability based on the performance of the company in question, taking into account its business plan. Some shares of subsidiaries and affiliates are valued based on the intrinsic value, taking into account factors such as the excess earning capacity calculated during the acquisition of the company. The presence or absence of impairment of such factors is influenced by the feasibility of achieving future business plans. We estimate business plans based on factors such as revenue growth rates and gross profit ratios, but they may be affected by changes in future uncertain economic conditions. If revisions are necessary, the amounts to be recognized in financial statements for the following fiscal year or later may be impacted significantly.

(2) Impairment of Non-current Assets

The balances of property, plant and equipment, and intangible assets as of March 31, 2026, are 171,722 million yen and 15,260 million yen, respectively, and the amount of impairment loss for the year ended March 31, 2026 is 1,576 million yen.

The content regarding estimates and assumptions is as described in "Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements - Accounting Estimates - (1) Impairment of Non-financial Assets."

The balance of prepaid pension costs as of March 31, 2026 is 3,176 million yen.

The content regarding estimates and assumptions is as described in "Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements - Accounting Estimates - (2) Post-Employment Benefits."

(4) Provisions

The amount of provision for product warranties as of March 31, 2026 is 1,163 million yen.

The content regarding estimates and assumptions is as described in “Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements - Accounting Estimates - (3) Provisions.”

The content regarding estimates and assumptions is as described in “Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements - Accounting Estimates - (4) Income Taxes.”

Other Notes

Impairment Loss

The Company’s business assets are generally grouped by business segment under the Company’s management accounting system, and their cash flows are continuously monitored. Assets to be disposed of (i.e., assets planned to be disposed or sold etc.) and idle assets are separately assessed for impairment on the individual asset level.

Impairment loss recognized in the fiscal year under review is mainly for business assets that belong to the manufacturing solutions business. Although the Company will continue to invest for future growth, the recovery of markets in major sales regions has been slower than expected, and there remain uncertainties in the investment trends of certain major customers. As a result, it is expected to take time to improve profitability, and the carrying amount of the business assets in the said business has been reduced to its recoverable amount. An impairment loss of 765 million yen is recognized, with the recoverable amount calculated using net realizable value.

Responsibilities of Management and the Audit & Supervisory Committee for the Financial Statements and the Accompanying Supplementary Schedules

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in Japan, and for designing and operating such internal control as management determines is necessary to enable the preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

The Audit & Supervisory Committee is responsible for monitoring the execution of Directors' duties related to designing and operating the financial reporting process.

Auditor's Responsibility for the Audit of the Financial Statements and the Accompanying Supplementary Schedules

Our responsibility is to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to express an opinion on the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules from an independent standpoint in an audit report, based on our audit. Misstatements can occur as a result of fraud or error, and are deemed material if they can be reasonably expected to, either individually or collectively, influence the decisions of users taken on the basis of the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules.

We make professional judgment in the audit process in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in Japan, and perform the following while maintaining professional skepticism.

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error. Design and implement audit procedures to address the risks of material misstatement. The audit procedures shall be selected and applied as determined by the auditor. In addition, sufficient and appropriate audit evidence shall be obtained to provide a basis for the audit opinion.
- In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, although the purpose of the audit of the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules is not to express an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control.
- Assess the appropriateness of accounting policies adopted by management and the method of their application, as well as the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management and the adequacy of related notes.
- Determine whether it is appropriate for management to prepare the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules on the premise of a going concern and, based on the audit evidence obtained, determine whether there is a significant uncertainty in regard to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the entity's ability to continue as a going concern. If there is a significant uncertainty concerning the premise of a going concern, the auditor is required to call attention to the notes to the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules in the audit report, or if the notes to the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules pertaining to the significant uncertainty are inappropriate, issue a modified opinion on the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules. While the conclusions of the auditor are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of the audit report, depending on future events or conditions, an entity may be unable to continue as a going concern.

- Besides assessing whether the presentation of and notes to the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules are in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in Japan, assess the presentation, structure, and content of the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules including related notes, and whether the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules fairly present the transactions and accounting events on which they are based.

- Plan and conduct the audit of the financial statements and other documents to obtain sufficient and appropriate audit evidence relating to the financial information on components, which is included in the financial statements and the accompanying supplementary schedules, which forms the basis for the opinion on the financial statements and other documents.
