Initial Report on Ransomware-caused Damage to an Overseas Subsidiary of Nidec Corporation

On June 22, 2026, Nidec Chaun Choung Technology Corporation (“Nidec Chaun Choung Technology”), a Taiwanese subsidiary of Nidec Corporation (“Nidec Corporation”), was compromised by a ransomware attack (Nidec Chaun Choung Technology Corporation and Nidec Corporation are hereinafter collectively referred to as “Nidec” or “we”). Accordingly, Nidec has launched initial measures to prevent the damage from spreading, while working with external specialized agencies to investigate the causes of the attack and the extent of its impact. We deeply apologize to our shareholders, investors, business partners, and others concerned for the tremendous anxiety that this matter must have caused.

1. Development of events and their current status

On Monday, June 22, 2026, ransomware-originated damage was confirmed in part of Nidec Chaun Choung Technology’s server. Thereafter, to prevent the spread of the damage, emergency measures, including shutting down the affected server and network, were taken. In addition, we have promptly reported this matter to external specialized agencies and relevant administrative organs and launched an investigation with them to identify its cause. Nidec Chaun Choung Technology built and operates an independent network unique to its group, and this issue will not affect Nidec Corporation or other Nidec Group companies.

2. Possibility of information leak

While, at this moment, no personal or confidential information has been confirmed to have leaked to the outside, investigations are ongoing in collaboration with external specialized agencies. We will promptly disclose material facts that should be reported as they are identified.

3. Impact on Nidec’s business operations

We are currently investigating, among other details, possible impact on our production, shipping, and other business operations. We will promptly disclose material facts that should be reported as they are identified. Our personnel will inform our business partners of impact on individual delivery dates and other issues.

4. Going forward

While this matter’s financial impact on Nidec Corporation’s consolidated performance is under examination at present, we will promptly report if this case is found to have any material impact on our performance and, as necessary, issue the next report based on the progress of the investigation.
